

Associate degree outcomes

CVCC identifies five college-level general education competencies or associate degree outcomes.

1. The student will write sentences and paragraphs in standard English that are sequential, logical and effectively organized.
2. The student will demonstrate oral communication competencies using unity of thought and logical arrangement of ideas.
3. The student will perform mathematical computations and apply mathematical principals and methodologies to be successful in their specific degree program.
4. The student will demonstrate knowledge of basic computer skills through the use of current computer technology and applications to develop computer literacy for academic settings and lifelong learning.
5. The student will demonstrate scientific literacy through factual knowledge, understanding theoretical concepts and fundamental principles in the natural sciences and the application of scientific principles and methodologies to solve scientific problems.

CVCC Foundation

The Chattahoochee Valley Community College Foundation, a nonprofit 501(c)(3) organization, was established in 1985 to support and assist the College in fulfilling and performing its educational and public service initiatives. The Foundation increases educational access for students through financial support, enables the College to initiate innovative projects to enhance the quality of education, and facilitates the College's growth and expansion.

Leaders from an array of Chattahoochee Valley companies and organizations voluntarily serve on the Foundation Board to secure appropriate sources of external funding through donations, planned giving, and scholarships. The College does not rely on the Foundation for operational needs. However, the work of the Foundation fosters strong partnerships between the College and the community.

Development Office

The Development Office builds relationships and raises external funds to support the mission of the College. The Office organizes and manages fundraising initiatives to address those needs so that donations enrich the College and the region it serves.

The Development Office serves as a liaison between the College and the Foundation Board; interacting with the community and the College's Alumni; and coordinating public-relations efforts as they relate to fundraising initiatives to include major-gifts campaigns. In addition, the Office serves as internal public relations support for the President and the campus. The ongoing role of the Development Office is to build awareness in the community, friendraising, and fundraising for the College.
